

Disrupting Bias:

Breaking down Barriers to an Inclusive Workplace Culture

Participants of this workshop will be challenged to think critically and deeply about some of the more difficult and complex topics that center Diversity and Inclusion. This self reflective and powerful workshop will examine the concepts of implicit bias, power, and privilege. Participants of this workshop will also explore the common barriers to inclusive workplaces as they think critically about the role that ethnocentrism, stereotyping, prejudice, and discrimination play in creating barriers to inclusive organizations. This eye opening examination of the barriers to inclusive workplaces will equip participants with the knowledge and skills needed to be advocates and allies to historically under-represented identity groups.

Disrupting Bias: Breaking Down Barriers to an Inclusive Workplace Culture is a self reflective and powerful learning experience that can develop agents of change who can help lead the efforts in cultivating a culture of inclusion and belonging in your organization.
